A Marriage of Convenience and Ambition

Agrippina's first marriage was to Gnaeus Domitius Ahenobarbus, a wealthy aristocrat. They had a son, the future emperor Nero. However, Agrippina's sights were set on higher power. After the death of her husband, she married her uncle, the emperor Claudius. This marriage was a calculated move to secure Agrippina's position and influence.

Intrigue and Power Struggles

As Claudius's wife, Agrippina wielded considerable power. She ruthlessly eliminated her rivals, including her own son-in-law, Lucius Junius Silanus. Her ambition knew no bounds, and she plotted to have her son Nero succeed Claudius as emperor.

In 54 CE, Claudius died under suspicious circumstances, and Nero ascended to the throne at the tender age of 17. It was widely believed that Agrippina had a hand in her husband's death. She continued to exert influence over Nero, but their relationship soon became strained.

A Mother's Fate

As Nero's power grew, he became increasingly independent and resentful of Agrippina's control. In 59 CE, Nero ordered the execution of his mother. Agrippina met her end in a brutal fashion, stabbed to death by a centurion.

A Legacy of Infamy
