This guide will provide you with everything you need to know to prepare for and pass the American citizenship exam. You'll learn about the test format, the content that will be covered, and the best way to study for success.

What is the American Citizenship Exam?

The American citizenship exam is a test of your knowledge of US history, government, civics, and English language proficiency. The test is divided into two parts: a written test and an oral interview.

The written test consists of 20 questions about US history and government. You must answer at least 12 questions correctly to pass the written test.

The oral interview is conducted by a US Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS) officer. The officer will ask you about your personal background, your reasons for wanting to become a US citizen, and your understanding of US history and government.

Who is Eligible to Take the American Citizenship Exam?

To be eligible to take the American citizenship exam, you must:

- * Be at least 18 years old
- * Have been a lawful permanent resident (green card holder) for at least 5 years (or 3 years if you are married to a US citizen)
- * Be able to read, write, and speak English
- * Have a basic understanding of US history and government
- * Be of good moral character

How to Prepare for the American Citizenship Exam

The best way to prepare for the American citizenship exam is to study the official USCIS study materials. These materials are available online and at your local public library.

You should also practice taking practice tests. This will help you familiarize yourself with the test format and the types of questions that you will be asked.

There are a number of online resources that can help you prepare for the American citizenship exam. These resources include practice tests, study guides, and videos.

What to Bring to the American Citizenship Exam

When you go to take the American citizenship exam, you will need to bring the following:

* Your green card * Your passport * Two passport-sized photos * A pen

What to Expect on the Day of the Exam

On the day of the exam, you will arrive at the USCIS office and check in. You will then be taken to a room where you will take the written test.

After you have completed the written test, you will be interviewed by a USCIS officer. The interview will last about 15 minutes.

The USCIS officer will ask you a variety of questions about your background, your reasons for wanting to become a US citizen, and your understanding of US history and government.

What Happens After the Exam

After you have taken the exam, the USCIS officer will let you know if you passed or failed. If you passed, you will be scheduled for a naturalization ceremony.

At the naturalization ceremony, you will take the Oath of Allegiance and become a US citizen.

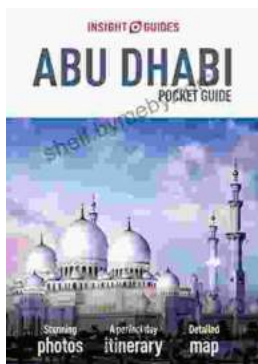

Becoming a US citizen is a great honor. The American citizenship exam is the final step in the naturalization process, and it is important to be well-prepared for it. By following the tips in this guide, you can increase your chances of passing the exam and becoming a US citizen.
