1. Dinosaur Statues

Route 66 is home to a number of larger-than-life dinosaur statues, each with its own unique story. The most famous of these is probably the Cabazon Dinosaur Park in California, which features a pair of 70-foot-tall dinosaurs, a T-rex and a brontosaurus. Other notable dinosaur statues along Route 66 include the World's Largest Dinosaur in Arizona, the World's Largest Triceratops in Wyoming, and the World's Largest Stegosaurus in Illinois.

2. Muffler Men

Muffler Men are large, fiberglass statues that were once used to advertise car mufflers. They can be found all over the United States, but they're especially common along Route 66. These statues are often depicted as cowboys, Indians, or other iconic American figures. Some of the most famous Muffler Men along Route 66 include the Muffler Man in Illinois, the World's Largest Muffler Man in Arizona, and the Muffler Man Village in California.

3. Perfect Roadside Americana

In addition to dinosaur statues and Muffler Men, Route 66 is also home to a number of other classic roadside attractions, such as diners, drive-in theaters, and gas stations. These places offer a glimpse into the past and a chance to experience a bit of Americana. Some of the most popular roadside attractions along Route 66 include the Blue Swallow Motel in New Mexico, the Wigwam Motel in Arizona, and the Meteor Crater in Arizona.

Whether you're interested in dinosaurs, Muffler Men, or classic roadside Americana, Route 66 has something for everyone. So hit the open road and discover the treasures of this iconic highway.
