Marley Dias, the young activist and advocate for Black girls, has joined forces with Mary MacLane to create a book that is sure to inspire and empower a new generation of leaders.

In #1000BlackGirlBooks, Dias and MacLane share the stories of 100 amazing Black women who have made significant contributions to the world. These women come from all walks of life and have achieved success in a variety of fields, including science, technology, engineering, math, arts, and politics.

The book is more than just a collection of biographies. It is also a call to action. Dias and MacLane want to encourage young people, especially Black girls, to dream big and to strive for greatness. They believe that anything is possible if you have the courage to go after your dreams.

Dias is a living example of the power of dreams. At the age of 11, she founded the #1000BlackGirlBooks campaign to collect and donate books featuring Black girl protagonists to libraries and schools. The campaign was a huge success, and Dias has since been recognized for her work by Michelle Obama, Oprah Winfrey, and the United Nations.

Maclane is an award-winning author and illustrator who has written over 30 books for children. Her work has been praised for its diversity, inclusivity, and positive messages. She is passionate about using her platform to empower children and to help them see themselves in the books they read.

#1000BlackGirlBooks is a powerful and inspiring book that is sure to make a difference in the lives of young people. It is a must-read for anyone who believes in the power of dreams and the importance of representation.
