Werbner's work is based on extensive fieldwork in both Israel and the Palestinian Territories. She has spent years talking to people from all walks of life, from politicians and religious leaders to ordinary citizens. Her research has given her a unique insight into the ways that Israelis and Palestinians understand themselves and each other.

In this book, Werbner argues that the conflict between Israel and the Palestinians is not simply a political or religious conflict. It is also a cultural conflict, a conflict of identities. Israelis and Palestinians have very different ways of understanding the world, and these differences make it difficult for them to find common ground.

Werbner's book is a timely and important contribution to the ongoing debate about the Israeli-Palestinian conflict. Her work offers a unique perspective on the conflict, and it is essential reading for anyone who wants to understand the challenges of peacemaking in the Middle East.

Reviews

"Pnina Werbner is one of the world's leading anthropologists, and her work on Israel and the Palestinians is essential reading for anyone who wants to understand this complex conflict. This book is a major contribution to the field, and it is sure to be widely read and debated." - Professor Sarah Abu-Rabia, Georgetown University

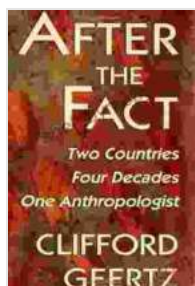

"Werbner's book is a tour de force. It is a must-read for anyone who wants to understand the Israeli-Palestinian conflict. Werbner's insights are invaluable, and her book is sure to have a major impact on the field." - Professor Ilan Pappé, University of Exeter
